Digital Projects

- 2017 Skin Deep: Contemporary Engagements with American Memory, Race, Immigration, and Contested Spaces
<http://skindeep.leadr.msu.edu>
- Launched in partnership with Michigan State University's Lab for the Education and Advancement in Digital Research (LEADR), Skin Deep is a website publishing work by emerging scholars on issues surrounding the relationship between immigration, race, personal identity, and the public. I served on the website design team, acted as a web administrator, and contributed scholarship.

- 2017 Sects Ed
<https://www.sectsed.com>
- Sects Ed is an independently produced podcast exploring the history of cults, heresies, and new religious movements. Its purpose is to inform both an academic and general audience how the world viewed members of unorthodox faiths and how they viewed themselves. Along with co-hosting the podcast, I researched and wrote episodes and managed the show's social media.
- 2014 – 2016 Jesuit Libraries Provenance Project
<https://jesuitlibrariesprovenanceproject.com>
- The Jesuit Libraries Provenance Project, funded by the Joan and Bill Hank Center for the Catholic Intellectual Heritage, maintains a visual archive of Loyola University Chicago's first library books. I coordinated interns who photographed these historic texts, and I generated metadata for them. I also contributed blog posts and managed the project's social media.
