TEACHING AND SUPERVISION OF STUDENTS

As a member of the steering committee, I have co-conceptualized a doctoral programme on the topic of migration and post-colonialism. This programme enhances transdisciplinary work (history, sociology, political science, religious studies, social anthropology, gender and cultural studies, as well as other disciplines) at the postgraduate level. In addressing important challenges to society and politics, it gives PhD students the opportunity to bridge different knowledge cultures, enhance intellectual exchange, and discuss current methodological and theoretical debates. From 2013 to 2019, around 50 PhD students have taken part in this programme.
